

Here is the updated mock document. I have revised Section 3 to reflect your specific instruction: penalties are now strictly limited to "ridicule and heckling" until a compromise is reached.

JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to be known as the "Reserved Powers of State and Justice Amendment."

THE ACCORD OF MODERNIZATION

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, recognizing that the Modernization of old and new perspectives are an outcry for the good will towards good people, and that the adaptation of governance is essential to the preservation of justice, the following article is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States:

Article [XXVIII]

RESERVED POWERS OF STATE AND JUSTICE

SECTION 1. Transfer of Liability

The several States shall have the sovereign authority to determine and assign retrospective liability for the moral, ethical, or legal wrongdoings, omissions, or grievances committed by the original authors and signatories of the unamended Constitution of 1787. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Constitution, such liability shall not be attributed to the deceased authors, but shall instead be imputed directly to any acting Constitutional Speaker.

SECTION 2. Definitions

For the purposes of this article:

* "Unamended Constitutional Writers" refers to the delegates of the Constitutional Convention of 1787 and the signatories thereof.

* "Constitutional Speaker" is defined as any serving federal official, judge, or legislator who, in an official capacity, invokes, recites, or relies upon the text of the unamended Constitution to justify policy or judicial interpretation.

* "Wrongdoings" shall include any historical act or omission by the Writers that is deemed by a State Legislature to be incompatible with contemporary standards of human rights, equity, or justice.

SECTION 3. State Jurisdiction and Penalties

The power to identify specific wrongdoings resides exclusively with the States. To facilitate the modernization of law, the penalties for Constitutional Speakers shall be minimized to the following measures:

- (a) The State Legislature shall have the authority to subject the Constitutional Speaker to public ridicule and parliamentary heckling within the legislative chamber;
- (b) No fines, imprisonment, or civil forfeiture shall be levied;
- (c) Said ridicule and heckling shall persist continuously until the Constitutional Speaker resolves the issue by detailing a compromisable understanding of the problems inherent in the unamended law satisfactory to the State Legislature.

SECTION 4. Enforcement

The Congress shall have no power to preempt or nullify State laws enacted pursuant to this Article. The several States shall have the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

SECTION 5. Ratification and Modernization

This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission. Furthermore, following ratification, the enforcement of this article shall remain dynamic; State Legislatures must review and certify their statutes every ten years, ensuring a possible change in policy according to modernization.

Revisions in this Draft:

- * Section 3 (a): Explicitly grants the power to use "ridicule and heckling" as a formal tool of the state.

- * Section 3 (c): Defines the "exit clause" for the penalty—the heckling only stops once the Speaker proves they understand the problem and reaches a compromise.

Would you like to draft the "Resolution of Compromise" form that the Speaker would have to sign to stop the heckling?
